Currency controls: important changes in 2022

Currency selling restrictions

On March 9, 2022, the Central Bank of Russia introduced a ban on the sale of cash currency to individuals until September 9, 2022. From March 18, 2022, the Bank allowed the sale of cash currency to citizens, but only in an amount received at the cash desks of a credit institution after April 9, 2022. The total limit is US$ 10,000 or the equivalent in euros. One can exchange currency for rubles without restrictions.

Ban on the export of foreign currency

According to Decree of the President of the Russian Federation No. 81 dated March 1, 2022, from March 2, 2022, it is forbidden to export cash foreign currency from Russia in an amount exceeding the equivalent of US$ 10,000 and calculated at the official exchange rate of the Central Bank of Russia on the date of export.

New rules for transferring funds

The Central Bank of Russia has limited money transfers abroad. Within a calendar month, individuals have the right to transfer no more than US$ 10,000 or the equivalent of this amount in another currency to their foreign account or to another person abroad. Through the companies that provide money transfer services without opening an account, one can transfer no more than US$ 5,000 per month. The transaction amount is calculated at the official exchange rate of the Central Bank of Russia on its date.

Such transfers from Russia can only be made by residents or foreign citizens from "friendly" countries. All others can transfer funds to foreign banks only if they operate in the Russian Federation. Citizens from "unfriendly" countries, who do not work in the Russian Federation, will not be able to make transfers abroad until October 1, 2022.

New rules for withdrawing money from an account

If money in foreign currency was credited to the account before March 9, 2022, then a citizen can only withdraw up to US$ 10,000 in cash in one bank. He has the right to receive this amount in each organisation, where he has opened an account. The rest is issued only in rubles at the market rate on the day of issue. In rubles, all money that was received into the account after March 8, 2022, is also issued.

Legal entities and individual entrepreneurs who are residents of the Russian Federation, from March 10, 2022, to September 10, 2022, can receive cash in US dollars, Japanese yen, pounds and euros only within an amount equivalent to US$ 5,000 and only to pay for expenses for foreign business trips. And if a resident has opened foreign currency accounts in different banks, then he can receive an amount equivalent to US$ 5,000 in each of them. In special cases, at the request to the Central Bank of Russia, this amount may be increased.

The companies and individual entrepreneurs that are not residents of the Russian Federation do not have the right to withdraw US dollars, euros, Japanese yens, and pounds. All organizations and individual entrepreneurs can withdraw other currencies without restrictions. Funds received from a foreign bank or from an electronic wallet are issued exclusively in rubles. The conversion is made at the rate of the bank.
